Why did World War 2 start?

When World War 1 finished, Germany lost some of its lands, was forced to pay money to allies and to make its army, navy and air force smaller. Germany became poor. The German people began to lose their jobs and food became too expensive to buy. Hitler and his party promised to change things and he eventually became the leader of Germany.

He made the army, navy and air force larger, stopped paying money to the allies and began to take back the land that was taken from them. He bullied the countries around Germany. Eventually, he threatened to invade Poland. If he did this Great Britain and France told him there would be war. Hitler decided to invade Poland and the war began.

Adolf Hitler in WW1

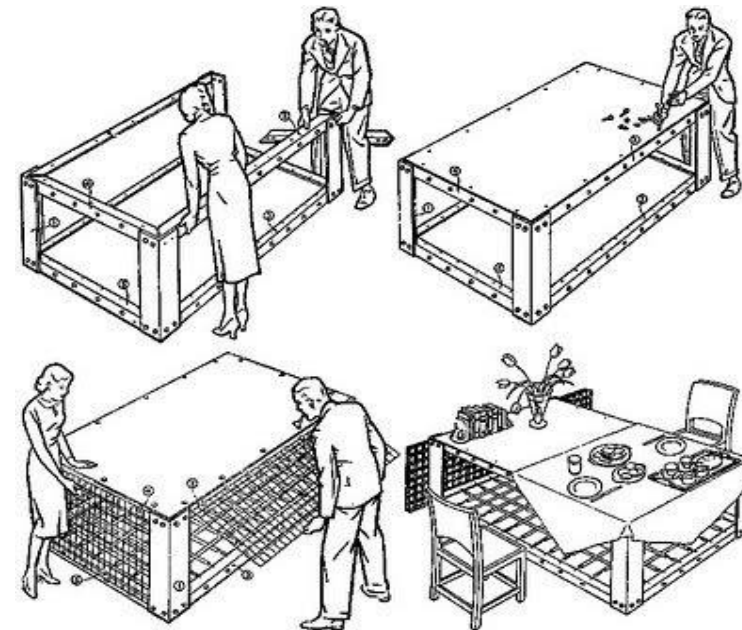

Hitler was a messenger in the army in WW1. He showed considerable bravery and won 2 medals. On October 15th 1918 he was injured in a mustard gas attack. Many people believe this is the reason why Germany did not use poisonous gas during WW2 to attack the Allies.

How to put up your Morrison "Table" Shelter

Morrison Shelter

Morse Code

Morse code was used by spies and the armed forces to send messages in WW2. Morse code is made up of dots (short sounds) and dashes (long sounds). It was created in the 1830s and 1840s by Samuel Morse.

The Battle of Britain

Britain's cities were bombed during WW2. Germany wanted to force Britain to surrender. Houses all over the country built bomb shelters. The two main ones were the Anderson and Morrison shelters.

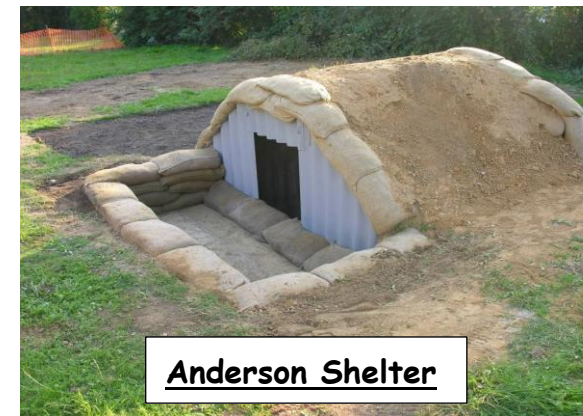

Many children were evacuated to the countryside for their safety.

The Spitfire

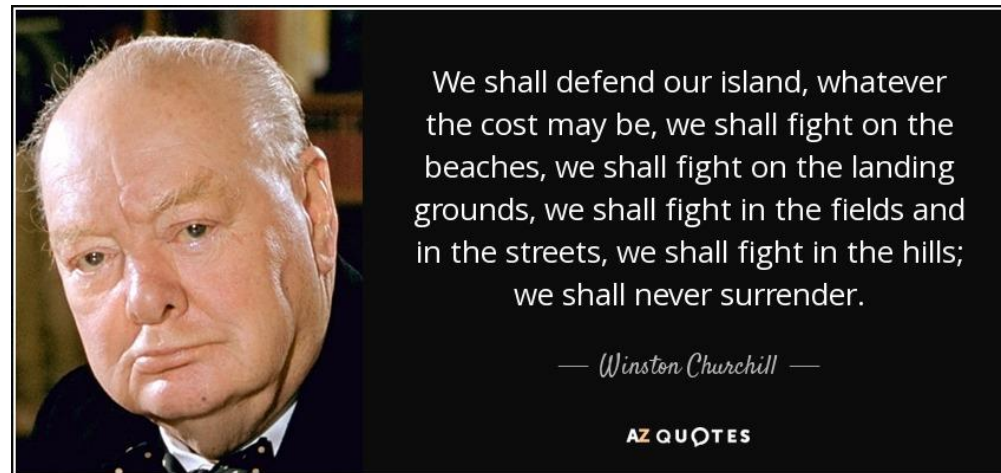

The Spitfire was one of the best and most famous planes of the war. Thanks to these planes and their brave pilots, Great Britain won the Battle of Britain.

If you go to Star City, you will see the Jaguar Car factory. In WW2, this factory was very important as it built Spitfires.

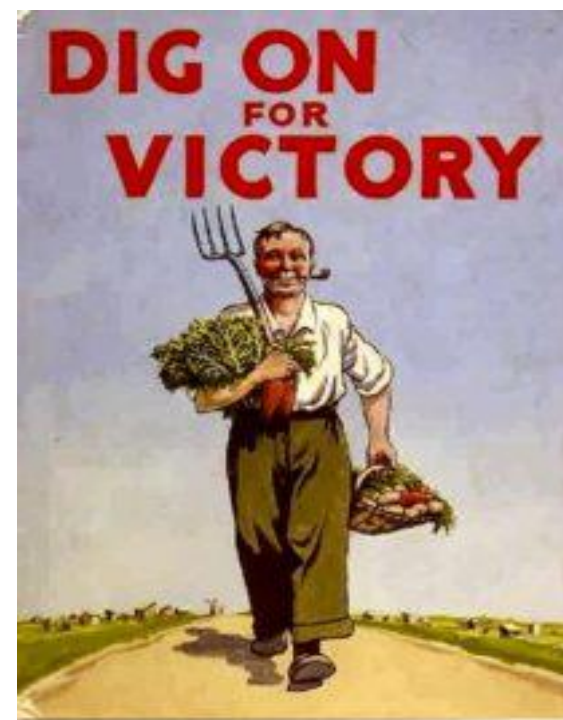

Anderson Shelter

An extract from Churchill's speech at the start of the war

The V2
This was the first human object ever to go into space. It was built by Germany and was used to attack cities in England, such as London.

During WW2, food was rationed. People were therefore encouraged to grow their own food in their gardens.
